aim Tuesday at restrictive clauses in labor-management

Legislative amendments to the 1959 Trade Union Act will have a direct effect in the construction industry and could have far-reaching ef-fects generally.

One of the main targets of the changes is contracting of work to sub-contractors who must in turn have agreements with unions affiliated with the building trades council.

Union agreements would be "null and void and of no effect" in non-strike situations which require or permit, or have this effect, of persuading anyone not to enter an employer's place of business, oversities or employment to operations or employment; to deal in or handle products of any person; or to do business with any person.

Trade union leaders reserved comment into morning while they studied the amendments, but the B.C. and Yukon Building and Construction Trades Council whose affiliated unions now are renegotiating contracts — promised a statement later

Labor Minister James Chabot said in an interview the changes are designed to guarantee survival of certain unions in B.C:

HUGHES Wrecked Ship Spilling Oil In Park Area

By PAT DUFOUR Times Staff

The Pacific Rim National Park on Vancouver Island's west coast lay under threat today from crude bunker oil spilling from a holed freighter off Cape Beale.

The freighter Vanlene had 400 tons of bunker oil aboard when she hit a rock, part of the Broken Group, which lie southeast of Austin Island and northwest of Cape Beale. Officials are unable to say at what rate the off is leaking, but when told of how much is aboard, a provincial fish and wildlife spokesman said:

"Oh, my God!"

The grounding occurred at 9 p.m; Tuesday when the ship. with 38 crewmen aboard, was on her way from Japan to Vancouver with a cargo of cars.

Locating of the 8,500-ton freighter and the rescue of her crew this morning was complicated by an incorrect position radioed from Vaniene when she sent out her May Day distress signal.

In an interview at Port Alberni today, the ship's captain, Captain Lo Chung-Hung. 29, said he had crossed the Pacific Ocean with only a hand compass as a navigational aid. He had navigated in deep log all Tuesday.

"All our navigation alds had broken down. I requested of the ship's owner that it be fixed before we left Japan Feb. 24 but this was the option of the owner. I am very unhappy

Chabot said restrictive-clauses are mainly in force in contracts governing construc-tion trades affecting the abili-ty of a third party to enter job

He said various employer. groups and some unions, which he did not name, asked for a one-year delay before action is taken against re-strictive clauses.

He gave a theoretical exam-ple of a trucking firm which drivers certified with a union drivers certified with a union are excluded by a restrictive clause. The firm would not be allowed to bring materials to a construction site where these clauses are in effect.

From time to time, there have been disputes between building unions (usually the Teamsters) and the CBRT and the International Woodworkers of America over trucking of supplies onto job sites.

NOT PURPOSE

"I don't believe that a col-lective agreement is for the purpose of harassment, the purpose of destruction, the purpose of working to the delriment of another trade union," he said.

The restrictive clauses common in construction union agreements have been tested at least twice in recent times in the courts and held to be

Lawyer Louis Lindholm said today he sees the legislative amendment directed prilating that general contrac-tors must sub-contract work only, to companies holding agreements with affiliates of the building trades council.

This council is comprised of international unions in the building trades and does not include either the CBRT or the IWA:

Lindholm said an Indirect result will be to permit a wider choice by the union member of which union he wants to belond to, and thus is an indirect form of "right to work" legislation although it does not affect the closed

"It will be unlawful for a sunion or a group of unions to excluse a union from an industry, which has been the effect of restrictive clauses in the construction industry," he

Asked about possible effects wider than the sub-contractor clause, such as clauses in union agreements covering hot cargo, struck goods and respecting picket lines and being able to refuse to work with non-union workers, he

"Because the language is so wide, and a trifle tortuous, there is a grey area so broad that the ambit of the legislation will only become clear after it has been tested in the courts."

COURT TEST

Lindholm himself is in-volved in a case between Victoria Paving and three con-struction unions — Teamsters, Laborers and Teamsters, Laborers and Operating Engineers — which was to go to court Monday to the walldity of such

This involved a refusal by Dominion Construction to grant a paving contract at Simpsons-Sears to low-bidding Victoria Paving because its employees were represented by the CBRT and not building trades council affiliates, which in turn were insisting on enforcement of the sub-contractor clause, he said.

Victoria Paving subsequent-ly did do the work after an injunction was issued, said Lindholm. Monday's case would have to be reconsidered in light of the legislative amendments, he added.

He summed up the changes as meaning, when a strike is not in progress, as rendering "unlawful the negotiation of a contract which has the effect of preventing a party to a collective agreement to agree to restrict those with whom he can do business."

He added that because of restrictive clauses, affiliates of building trades councils have been able to "monopolize" organizing of workers

Canada, U.S. Differ on UN

While Canadians and U.S. citizens tend to have similar opinions on many controversies, their attitudes towards the United Nations show sharp contrasts of opinion.

Among Canadians, a quarter of the people report that their respect for the United Nations is decreasing as the years go by. In the U.S., this is the attitude for the almost two-thirds of the population. For the largest segment in Canada — 36 per cent — attitudes towards the UN, remain unchanged, but this is true for only 11 per cent in the U.S., More than four times the ratio in Canada is undecided, than are unsure of their opinions in the U.S. In both countries, lowever, about the same segment finds their respect increasare unsure of their opinions in the U.S. In both countries, however, about the same segment finds their respect increasing — in Canada 20 per cent; in the U.S., 25 per cent.

Racial backgrounds in Canada have a big effect, however, on how the people react. English-Canadians for instance, report a good deal more disappointment in the UN's performance (32 per cent) than do French-Canadians (12 per cent), among whom about twice as many are undecided.

The question asked in both countries:

"Is your respect for the United Nations organization in creasing or decreasing as the years go by?"

The table below shows points of view in Canada, the U.S., together with those of the main ethnic groups in Canada.

Who Has the Say Here?

The city's new amendment to control high-rise construction is not even approved yet, but already it has been suggested that its restriction on height be set aside in favor of a building project planned for the Wilson property in the Blanshard-Burdett area. If we are to have height and set-back restrictions, then the only way to derive benefit from them is to enforce them. As Alderman Young points out, to permit deviation "by an inch or a mile" by one builder would open the gate to any other.

In any case, the amendment's specified permissible height of 14 storeys or 140 feet appears to be an arbitrary one. Such a height would be quite unacceptable in some locations in the city, creating many of the disadvantages of the high-rise form of construction even though avoiding the extremes.

The figure appears to be a compromise between proposals for 30 or more storeys, and the common three-storey apartment box which lines many of our residential streets. But it takes little note of location, surroundings, traffic arteries or possible congestion problems. It is good to have a limit beyond which high-rises cannot go - if it is enforced - but that does not mean that every construction of 14 storeys or less will constitute an asset to the city.

The reported Reid proposal for two 10-storey towers on the Wharf Street waterfront is a big reduction from the original plan for up to 23 storeys. But surely the criterion is not how much can be whittled from the unacceptable height in a compromise, but what is a suitable type of building for that important site. And high-rises, whether they be of 20 storeys or only 10, will have much the same effect on the Wharf Street environment and the Old Town concept. Again, the prime factor is

The other proposals with which City Council is wrestling are even more indefensible. Thirtyeight storeys on Douglas Street near the Bay, 33 storeys in James. Bay on Menzies Street, 25 storeys at View and Quadra - these projects were originally set in motion without any adequate over-all survey of the city's interests, of the effects on the adjacent neighborhoods, of the problems of traffic and people-congestion, of whether this community needed such structures at all. Yet aldermen at the time gave approval with varying degrees of legal commitment, and the present council is now trying to extricate the city from its predicament.

As Mayor Pollen rightly says, "we are going through a serious transition here, from almost no regulations at all to a firm 14-storey limit". There is all the more reason to hold the line without deviations, whether to assist individuals or to save time.

The council - which should reflect the views of the citizens should never lose the power to control the rate or the size or the nature of the city's growth. It should have far more control than even the new toe-in-the-water amendment will give it: for instance we are still apparently years away from getting proper aesthetic criteria established, along with the existing sanitary and fire-protection requirements.

There is so much to be done in planning for this community but builders will not wait around forever while a master plan for Victoria's future is prepared.

Poor Show

Drivers who have occasion to use the Pat Bay Highway will find little to cheer in Highway Minister Wesley Black's statement in the Legislature. The minister admits his department has encountered trouble in "improving" the route from the city to the airport and ferry terminals and can offer the assurance only that "it will be finished as soon as possible."

This is scarcely an adequate reply to the issue raised by Dr. Scott Wallace, who expressed a general opinion when he said he has been "shocked at the death toll and accident rate along the highway"-a toll he places at 20 per cent of traffic fatalities in Greater Victoria.

The department has created a hazard rather than a safe, fast route to and from the airport and ferries, with confusing "temporary" mazes thrown in to bedevil the motorist unfamiliar with the route. This work has taken far too long, particularly in view of the heavy traffic along the route. A performance of this nature could well bring a request for the minister's resignation. It's the old government custom of "let the public bear the brunt."

auditor-general has been referred to the public accounts committee, a welcom development indicating once again that the government's second or thoughts are often an improvement over

There is no great mystery to be un-covered. The act states that the report of the auditor-general shall be laid before the House of Commons by the minister on or before the 31st day of December or, if Parliament is not then sitting, "within the first 15 days next thereafter that Parliament is sitting...

The minister, not having received the report, has not complied. But the reason for non-receipt is to be found in another section of the act. This required the "every case" (other than those which he considers of insufficient significance) in which he finds that there have been transgressions under any of six sub-paragraphs. Mr. Henderson, a notably zealous officer, argues that with the amount of work provided for him by the government and the staff available to m, it is simply not possible to meet the time requirements.

It is not a new complaint, although the details have varied a bit from year to year. Mr. Henderson wants more and better staff and has never been happy about the record of the public service commission in recruiting for him. Desupposed to have and last year saw 22 of his auditors drawn away by government departments, most of them offering larger salaries.

Cannot Strain Law

In the result his report has, for a number of years, been late and in one year he had to bring it out in two vol-

There is occasional criticism of Mr Henderson because he is also engaged in the audit of the accounts of certain in-ternational organizations. But the act says that he is to do this "whenever the governor in council or the treasury Nixon's Peking board directs." Why it so directs is not clear, but possibly has something to do with our international prestige. No auditor-general worth his salt is dom. The usual result of his labor is that various civil servants find themselves under the critical scrutiny of the public accounts committee. This may account for the view which many of them appear to entertain — that the only good auditor-general is a dead auditor-general.

Resentment also finds expression in the rather common protest that Mr. Henderson is merely one bureaucrat among many, but with loftier pretensions. There may have been an echo of this in Mr Trudeau's recent comment: "Well, Mr. Speaker, every minister in this government would like to have more staff." The point is, however, that Mr. Henderson is not in the position of a minister or departmental head. As an officer of Par-1962-63 (when the Diefenbaker government was beginning to rue the day of Mr. Henderson's appointment) the main estimates totalled $6,048 millions. For the coming year an even more rueful government has published main estimates amounting to $15,749 millions.

In other words, far more people today are engaged in spending far more money on far more programs than was the case a decade ago. It is Mr. Henderson's responsibility not merely to check on theft and fraud, but to ensure that in all these transactions no appropriation was exmanner not authorized by Parliament.

Apart from the sheer increase in the size of government, there has been a notable change in the philosophy of govern-ment. Since problems today are often of baffling complexity, governments are more and more inclined to see virtue in flexibility. In the minds of officials, the most important thing is to get things done. A proposed short-cut may be at the expense of the manner authorized or involve a certain strain on the law. The results, it is doubtless assumed, will and

Overloaded

Mr. Henderson is barred by statute from taking this view. His opinion is not always sustained. Parliament (in practice, its committee) will have the final judgment. But, if he considers a practice doubtful and fails to call attention to it. he will not merely be ignoring the act: he will be depriving the committee of any opportunity to study the case and reach a verdict

The situation is not primarily of Mr. Henderson's making. It was made for him by the vast expansion of govern ment and the change in outlook which has occurred. It will not pass when he retires, in due course, unless the government finds an amenable person, a sort of tame pussy cat, as a replacement. While the temptation, when the time comes; is bound to be strong, such an appoint would be no credit to any government and much to the disadvantage of the tax-

Hearing Aid

Recently there has been considerable publicity regarding the Hearing-Aid Reg-ulation Act and the licensing of hearing aid dealers. Much of this publicity re flects adversely on hearing aid dealers

Legislation and licensing is absolute-ly necessary to drive out and keep out the dishonest and unethical dealers and I am in favor of it but the reporters are not taking the trouble to find out all the facts so as to be fair to those who have worked hard for years to earn the respect of the community.

The report on Page 6 of the Victoria Times of March 1, 1972 is an example. The last paragraph in this report states: The government was criticized earlier this session for issuing licenses to dealers without being able to ensure they met (the) standards set by the act.

To the best of my knowledge, no lienses have been issued to dealers who have paid their registration and license fees as the bonding forms drawn up by the B.C. government were not acceptable to the insurance companies because settled, the issuing-of licenses has been held up. This is not the fault of the hearing aid dealers.

We have been told that quite a number of dealers in Vancouver have refused to apply for licenses, but others have applied and paid their fees, including the writer of this letter. - B. S. H. Tye, Victoria Hearing-Aid Co.

VANCOUVER — Liberals from all parts of the city crowded Gibbons hall on Powell Street to the doors last night. They came to hear the arguments of the Liberal candidates, all of whom, excepting Maxwell Smith, were at hand to give convincing reasons why the electorate of Vancouver should support the solid Liberal ticket of five strong, clean men.

Nor were the auditors disappointed. The speeches were of the fighting order, the kind that make a man who is a man feel like doing his best to aid such can-

Labor Meets Government In Another Pseudo-Event

By ANTHONY WESTELL

The reporters scrambled for space at the press table and those who lost squatted on the floor.

We were all waiting for a repeat of last year's confrontation when Trudeau tangled angrily with Quebec labor leader Louis Laberge over the War Measure Act and squabbled with MacDonald over economic policy.

But MacDonald was not deterred. The government had all year to talk, he had told an aide earlier, and now it was the CLCs turn. He straightened his gray suit, smoothed his gray hair, and began to read.

MacDonald read stolidly for 40 minutes. Trudeau, dapper in a check splats jacket and brown suede pants, fiddled with his papers, tapped his fingers, yawned behind his hand and glanced at the clock. Veterans' Affairs Minister Arthur Laing passed a note to Postmaster-General Jean-Pierre Cote and they chuckled. Housing Minister Ron Bastord crossed his arms tightly across his chest as if to contain his impatience.

Around the room there was a shuffling of feet as the standing union leaders shifted position, and at the press table the reporters muttered complaints and began to gossip. The TV cameras whirred briefly whenever MacDonald came to a passage that had been marked as newsworthy.

He said, for example, while criticizing the high rate of unemployment: "Many Canadian families will continue to suffer because of past policies, probably the most inept, ill-advised and inhuman policies ever thrust upon any nation in modern times."

any nation in modern times."

We all noted that as a headline phrase, and one of Trudeau's aides, lounging against a wall, remarked that Hitler would be jealous: Surely, he said to a CLC official, that sort of language was excessive.

At last MacDonald was nearing the end of his script. He worried about war in the Middle East, U.S. bombing in Viet Nam, approved assistance to Bangladesh and called for more foreign aid, and added astomishingly:

"We are deeply conscious of the drastic abdreviation of our views, both within the memorandum itself and even more so within this summary." Having leahed the government and the Prime Minister personally with all the political insults his writers were worth, be said it was "respectfully submitted," and sat down.

Trudeau's face had long since frozen into a bleak mask. He had asked for a one-hour meeting, stipulated that in any event it should not run longer than 90 minutes (he had to be in the House of Commons at 2 p.m. briefed to meet all questions) and suggested an exchange of opinions. Now, he said icily to MacDonald, 50 minutes of the hour had gone, and "in future years, we really should consider some way of using our time more usefully.

"We have all read your brief. This time is too valuable to spend most of it reading." It would be better, he suggested, if in future ministers gave their comments on a written brief and the unions leaders replied.

MacDonald agreed the point was well taken but added: "You and I are facing elections this year and you can talk much more than I." It was said with a smile but it made the point that while the Prime Minister has a national audience every day, the president of the CLC has to make the best of his occasions. Amid the laughter are the room, Trudeau retorted that he hoped that neither of them would add to the problem of the unemployed, and then called on his ministers to comment briefly on the CLC's criticiams.

One by one, the ministers gave their stock answers to the familiar attacks, and the clock crept past the 90 minute limit at 12:30. Dave Thomson, the chief of Trudeau's regional desk officers, handed the boss a note, and the meeting came quickly to an end.

**even makers he would like to talk about, such as foreign ownership. Trudeau said shuffling together his papers, and he hoped the union leaders would consult regularly with his ministers. But now there was no time and off he went.

There was a mutter from the crowd as they realized to their brief, even to reply to the attack on his economic policies, and MacDonald admitted he was a little surprised.

That'll leach 'em for taking up all the time," a disappointed reporter remarked and we drifted out of the committee room. The great occasion on which organized lab species to the givernment of Canada was over for another year.

another year.

The message, of course, is that it is not really a great occasion, or even a significant event. It is what Daniel Bratin, the author of The Image, would call a pseudo-event, an affair arranged solely for the benefit of the media and for public consumption.

MacDonald added nothing to the detailed brief delivered to the cabinet. The government said nothing it has not said on a hundred occasions before. There was no exchange of views, not even an angry remark to tell us something about the personalities.

R was just another some in the delivered occasions.

It was just another scene in the daily theatre of our politics — a theatre that is ever more antiquated, remote from reality and convincing only to the most credulous,

The Tyranny of a Minority

OTTAWA The recent cancellation of Robert Shaw's play The Man in the Glass Booth by the Saidye Bronfman Centre in Montreal has evoked remarkably little comment outside of theatrical and Jewish circles in Candada. This is understandable because the incident dessn't lend itself to comfortble analysis. Commentators who give an opinion on it are certain to find themselves accused of prejudice and on the receiving end of a small but disagreeable flow of abusive letters and telephone calls.

But the incident should be

Man in the Glass Booth.

Premiered in London in 1968, the play portrays a wealthy New York Jew, survivor of a concentration camp, whose guilt over his survival leads him to impersonate a Nazi fugitive and who ends up as the central figure of an Eichmann-type trial in Israel. But the incident should be discussed by Canadians because it is one of the most striking and revealing examples, in our recent history, of the tyranny of the minority, a political phenomenon that isn't exclusive to the Jewish community in Montreal. * * *

vivors was given as the reason.

The campaign to stop the play was frantic and frightening. In a statement last week, the director of the theatre. Marion Andre, revealed that "the centre and YM-YWHA were abused on the phones. some wives of the leaders of both organizations received obscene phone calls threatening their husbands would be hurt if they did not stop advocating that the play should be shown."

Andre claimed that the play was cancelled by the centre after "an assessment was made that real violence could occur."

Their hypothesia was that in view of the often permanently crippling effects of the concentration camp experience on the personalities of a large number of survivors, it would seem more than likely that a number of those who had been adversely affected would be defective as parents."

One report of their atudy, which appeared in the Canadian Psychiatric Association journal last October, stated that "The concentration camp parents manifested greater difficulties in selfcontrol and in being able to control their children, and they show a greater degree of overvaluation of the child."

Rakoff and Sigal suggested that "the effects of concentration camps may conceivably manifest themselves in psychologically disturbed functioning of future generations."

Before the scheduled opening of the play on Feb. 28, a special reading was held for leaders of various Jewish community associations, including three executive members of the Survivors' Association.

By PETER DESBARATS

After resisting the pressure for several weeks, the directors of the centre backed down several days before the scheduled opening.

"Respect and compassion" for the feelings of the survivors was given as the reason.

During the controversy no one claimed that the play was anti-Semitic. The survivors' main argument was that it was "intolerable that a Jew-ish institution should tear open wounds" by commemorating the holocaust "in such a horrible way."

In Marion Andre's view, the incident showed that "nothing is so easy as to manipulate emotions, work upon feelings of guilt and provoke mass hysteria reaction." He said that the cancellation of the play became inevitable when

Only the Rhetoric Is New

Most Ottawa pundits agree that the next federal election is nearly upon us. They also agree that it is growing closer every day. And there they split. There are those who feel that the election will be held this spring, this fall or next spring. And there are those who believe the reverse. Unfortunately, no one is sure to which group the Prime Minister belongs.

Minister belongs.

There are several signs that an elec-tion is close by. The atmosphere in Par-liament is changing — as it does before each election — from boredom to ma-

Parliament "rises" then all the sitting members and other candidates "stand." for office. Finally, in a burst of desperation, they all "run."

Please note that candidates never walk. Nor do they lie down. They either sit, stand or run.

As all these exercises begin, the voter remains unmoved. He is waiting to hear about the issues.

And, in the fullness of time, the candidates will indeed come to the issues. One of the great blessings of Canadian politics is that our issues remain constant over the years. If not — what would we cling to?

A Boston dowager was once asked where she bought her hats, She replied "in Boston we have our hats."

Similarly in Canada — we have our issues. We have suckied them, weaned them and developed them since 1867.

We have no new issues, only a few

We have no new issues, only a few We have no new issues, any a lev-old ones in masquerade. There is, the marijuana issue — the reincarnated ghost of the bath-tub gin issue. We have unemployment and inflation perennial unsolvable favorites.

As the grain growers guide said in 1911—"the time has come when the western representatives should represent western people and western views and cut off commection with the privilege-ridden, party blind, office-hunting Grit and Tory (and they might have said NDP) parties that make their headquarters at Ottawa."

Therefore, it seems likely that the next election will be decided by new rietoric about old issues — plus that magical mystical ingredient of our tele-

Washington's Senate and House have already passed a similar resolution and the state is already going ahead with its share of the study.

NDP members shouted "shame" when the Social Credit refused to give the meeded consent to debate the motion.

Barrett earlier announced that six members of Washington State's House of Representatives will be guests of the New Democratic Party in Victoria Thursday and Friday.

Victoria Thursday and Friday.

He told a press conference the visit was arranged in return for the courtesy Washington legislators extended to the NDP when they went to Olympic in January.

The NDP leader said he hoped the visit can become part of a continuing conversation between B.C. and Washington legislators on joint pollution control problems.

During their two-day visit, the Washington delegation will be received at Government House at the invitation of Lt.-Gov. John Nicholson early Thursday evening.

Later that evening they are scheduled to meet Premier Bennett informally in his office.

fice. Barrett said the Washington group and B.C. MLSs will hold a joint press conference Friday morning in the NDP caucus room to discuss pollution along the border. The group also will be introduced to the legislature Friday at the afternoon sitting.

"Given the combination of high unemployment and rising imports," said the chairman of Ford Motor Co. in a speech to the Montreal Chamber of Commerce, "it is not overstating the case to say that within the next century either we will achieve a breakthrough in meeting these vast human needs, or the world will fall into chaos under the computation, hunger, environmental destruction and nationalistic struggles for survival." "Given, at the same time, the growth of multinational corporations, it is easy to conclude that these business export jobs and investment as well as technology that sooner or later comes back to hount us." "Instead of protectionism, we must hold fast to the principle of ever expanding multi-lateral trade as the necessary basis for peace, and prosperity," Ford said.

Coast Areas Not Included In Spill Act

Amendments to strengthen provincial government control of oil well and pipeline spills and leaks were approved in principle in the legislature Tuesday night after Mines Minister Frank Richter explained they have nothing to do with coastal shipping.

Richter was replying to op-position MLAs who com-plained the bill wouldn't help fight oil spills from sea tankers.

The minister said this was a case of misconstruing the bill which was designed to deal with oil industry spills within B.C. jurisdiction.

Opposition Leader Dave Barrett asked Richter what inventory of oil spill-fighting equipment was available in B.C.

Barrett cited a list including 8,150 feet of booms, two skimmers, seven boats of 10 by 22 feet; — miscellaneous other boats, six pumps, 2,900 feet of bose, 36 hand shovels, 13 rakes and a few bundles of peat moss and hay.

Hydro Money Vague-Grits

The Liberals Tuesday voted against a bill to increase B.C. Hydro's borrowing authority by $500 million because they said it doesn't show how the money is going to be spent.

Allan Williams (L—West Vancouver-Howe Sound) lamented that the bill didn't tell the legislature what projects Hydro had in mind for the money.

"Why are we being asked to allow this corporation to borrow $500 million? We have no answers. We're just voting in the dark," Williams said during second reading for approyal in principle.

"The principle of this bill is unprincipled: give us the money — don't ask questions, don't ask any questions after it's expended."

Gordon Dowding (NDP—Burnaby-Edmonds) said his party supports the principle that Crown corporations should be able to borrown should be able to borrown should be able to borrown should be right of B.C. Hydro to have borrowing power. If the Liberals are opposed to it, let them to be used to build the Moran Dam, a project Bennett remains publicly opposed to at this time.

A private member's bill seeking to make Indians living on reserves eligible for provincial home acquisition grants was introduced in the legislature Tuesday by Garde Gardom (L.— Vancouver-Point Grey).

SECOND SECTION

The Timeless Challenge Of a Great Man's Words

Question: "Thank you for standing up for the two young couples who are threatened with eviction in Metchosin by the Regional Board," writes N.G., of Millstream Lake Road. "Perhaps because I live in the country myself I feel a great sympathy for these people being forced to adhere to rules that seem pointless. In my opinion, it would be more worthwhile for our officials to spend time welcoming gentle people who can add some direction and meaning to life rather than forcing them to match a 'standard' that they may not believe in. Is there anything we can do to help?"

Asswer: There have been a great many letters and calls volunteering help and two members of the Capital Region Board have made a personal visit to see Jerry and Ellie and Don and Jennifer, the couples who face eviction. If no other compromise can be worked out, they're hopeful now that here can be, at least, an extension of the March 31 deadline, I'll keep you posted.

Question; "Recently I came across an interview that you conducted with the late Dr. Brock Chisholm on October 1, 1956," writes Margaret E. Gowler, of our town, "Your questions seem as necessary and valid now as are his replies. I wondered whether, in the election atmosphere which is beginning to thicken, you might consider republishing that particular article?"

Answer: The interview was arranged after Dr. Chisholm's defeat as a Conservative candidate in Esquimait in the 1956 provincial elections. I began by asking Dr. Chisholm if there was any real basis for believing that the public's will is the greatest guarantee of a strong democracy.

"No," he replied. "If there are enough weak, dependent, faithful, obedient, immature, irresponsible, superstitious or bating people, or people who want to be followers, a strong man will be what they want, until they get one, and then they cannot get rid of him."

Did he believe that the so-called average man is suitable his duty to be well-informed and to improve himself intellectually?

"Yes." answered Dr. Chisholm. "He often votes for his own local advantage which might be quite temporary rather than for the long-term values and causes important to the world, but that is just to say that the average man is not mature enough to function satisfactorily in a democracy. How could, he be when we have not been teaching independent thinking and personal integrity in our educational systems?"

Well, then, would he advocate an intelligence or current-afters test to insure that voters had a reasonable knowledge of the issues before marking their ballots?

"I do not think that is the answer," he replied. "Only continuing pressure, by all capable of applying it, in the direction of maturity of the individual citizen can ever, make democracy what it should and could be."

I asked Dr. Chisholm: "Do you believe that the materialism of North America has produced an ennul and a vacuum of individualistic thought as — say — compared with Europe?"

Dr. Chisholm: "I do believe that the excessive concern for ownership of stuff and things as a means of acquiring prestige or attention can take the place of much more important concerns and is doing so particularly in North America. This form of competition is child-like and un-social, but is the major concern of many people."

What could be done, then, if anything, to raise the level of this all-important "average man?"

Dr. Chisholm: "A long, slow, painful effort to recognize our other than the supplier of the sall-important "average man?"

What could be done, then, if anything, to raise the level of this all-important "average man?"

Dr. Chisholm: "A long, slow, painful effort to recognize our own weaknesses and prejudices, our own immaturities, our own tendency to grab, to indulge in aggression, to hate the different or experimental, to demand conformity is, I believe, the only possible first step. Then, or when the process is somewhat advanced, we will need to consider what was wrong with our upbringing. Then we can begin to revise our home and school systems of bringing up children.

"In the meantime," he went on, "we can do what is possible to weaken prejudice, to spread tolerance of experiment, of other kinds of people and different social systems. Question: "My wife and I were intrigued by your description of the game of Indian Poker and wasted an entire evening trying to make something of it." writes Mel Crossley, of Sooke. "We divided up a box of kitchen matches and went at it, but neither of us would venture a bet when the other had a high card and the game just petered out. Is it possible that we may have misunderstood the rules?"

Answer: My suggestion, Mel, is that you and Mrs. Crossley get on your knees tonight and thank the good Lord that you've been spared the gambling lust. Only a compulsive gambler could possibly see the insidious fascination of Indian Poker or its invitation to chicanery, double-dealing, outright lying and parlor dramatics. # You Quit Drinking? Prove It!

The way has been cleared for the British Columbia Motor Vehicle Branch to pursue a tough policy of removing drunks from the road indefinitely, superintendent Ray Hadfield said today.

He said that drunken driving is "a grim, tough problem" to deal with, but with the new legislation now before the house (see Page 14), his branch is being given "extra ways" to keep alcoholics and heavy drinkers away from cars until they prove they are doing something about their drinking.

The new legislation calls for a mandatory 30 days suspension on first conviction for drunk driving and six months at least on second offence within the same year. Up to the supersions have been second of the seco

Hadfield said the "at least" clause gives the branch more power to hold back a licence until it decides a person is reforming his drinking habits.

Honeymooner Beats Little' The Beginning for Byron

There was Byron Nelson, and Joe Kapp, and Jim Duncan, and Dale Tallon, and Ken Sugarman — that was quite a head table, wasn't it?

This was Monday and the Sports Celebrity Dinner again proved it had come of age.

Nelson, the magic name in golf a quarter of a century ago, now the analyst on the magic of the tube.

He once won 19 tournaments in a single year, 11 in a row, won a grand total of $52,000 for his year's work; and Tom Weiskopf, just two weeks ago won $50,000 for just four days of labor in the Jackie Gleason tournament.

If pay days have changed, so has the game, also for the better, said Lord Byron. "We played with hickory shafts, and it wasn't until 1939 that the steel shaft came along. Then the pitching wedge and the sand wedge. That eliminated fear of the traps, Besides, today's players hit the ball farther. They get traps. Besides, today's players hit the ball farther. They get their legs into it; we didn't."

It was in the golden northwest where Nelson developed the winning habit, and that gave him a love for the area. Which is why he came back, and because his long-time friend, and

Little Had Won 34 Straight Matches

Part of that early beginning happened this way. It was in 1935 and Nelson was entered in a match-play tournament in San Francisco, and he hadn't inquired as to who his opponent would be the next day. However, when he went to his hotel, his roomie was ready with the information.

"Know who you are playing?" he asked.

"No," answered Nelson.

"Lawson Little," was the excited reply.
"That kept me awake for a while," said Nelson. "Little had won 34 straight matcheplay matches."

won 34 straight match-play matches."

"I got some advice the next morning before I teed off. It was: 'If you can outdrive him, you may have a chance.'" (Nelson explained that Little was proud of his driving skills, and fancied himself as a long-ball hitter).

"Little had the honor, and hit first," Nelson went on. "The ground was soft. And when I got up, I teed my ball up high when I finally got it on the tee; I was so nervous. Then I hit one past Little, put my second hear the edge of the green and started with a birdle four on the par-five hole. The next hole I outdrove him again. The match ended on the 14th hole. I won 5 and 4."

Nobody knew me," said Nelson. "And the next day, the headline in the paper said: Honeymooner beats Little. Actually I had been married six months earlier."

Later Nelson played the northwest circuit; finished second to Horton Smith here in Victoria; and was low professional behind amateur Kenny Black in Vancouver the following week, But he had made a few dollars and had played well.

Now he was glad to be back here — with friends.

Played 72 Holes Without a Bogey

And two of those were Zimmerman, now a North Saanich resident, and Raiph Whaley, who also resides in the Deep Cove area.

If Zimmerman's name is not as famous as that of Nelson, he could play the game almost as well. There was one reminiscence before dinner that bears repeating—one from the Zimmerman record book. Match it if you can?

In one tournament Zimmerman played 72 holes with having a single bogey.He won. "I think it was by 15 shots," he said. "And I hit every green."

Whaley is a former PNW seniors champion, and equally well-known for his feats of archery. But this was tee time, and yet another noteworthy feat. For the record, Whaley now is 84, and has been shooting his.

Involve Young People To Add Energy to Clubs

Some rambling notes along the trail:

One of the better suggestions for increasing interest and membership in fish and wildlife clubs came from the lone woman in a roomful of males late last week at a dinner put on by officials of the Sportsman fishing clinic . . Mrs. Ted Peck put the message across: "Involve the younger generation" . . . the feenagers of today represent a vast source of energy and ideas that could revitalize many of our cliubs that have been around for a long time, where the same people assume responsibility year after year . . And that is another point . . . Not only should the younger generation be encouraged to participate in sclub activities but they should also be allowed to make some of the policy decisions . . Only in this manner can fish and wildlife groups expect to remain in the forefront of the battle against misuse of our natural resources . . . There is much truth in the saying: "Out of the mouths of babes . . ."

And speaking of involvement, approximately 40 delegates from 13 fish, wildlife and conservation organizations formed a group late last week to seek preservation of the White River near Kelsey Bay . . . Telegrams were sent out Monday to federal environment minister Jack Davis and MP Tom Barnett (NDP-Comox-Alberni) as well as provincial cabinet ministers Dan Campbell (municipal affairs), Ken Kiernan (recreation and conservation) and Ray Williston (lands and forests) . . . The telegrams were "asking for a halt on the logging operation pending on ecological survey and until the various government agencies have met" . . . The area is due to be logged by Mac-Millan Bloedel.

Millan Bloedel.

In addition to these telegrams, the group has sent a submission to Prince Bernhard of The Netherlands, president of the World Wildlife Fund . Bernhard, who was in Toconto this past February, expressed interest in the Roosevelt elk (which is on the endangered species list) and is expected to pass the brief on to the International Union for the Conservation of Nature and Natural Resources for recommendations and action.

An encouraging development connected with the upper White River valley, a unique area that supports vital wintering grounds for elk and spawning waters for salmonoid fish, involves the Comox-Strathcona regional board . At its meeting the board agreed (in principle to the establishment of a park in the endangered area.

And isn't it about time we developed a sound integrated resource management policy within this province? . . At a time when we are learning just how interdependent the various facets of our environment are, the resources of B.C. are administered by no less than three departments—each separated into many branches . . . Co-operation between these departments seems to be developing, but not fast enough . . . The old jealousies still are present.

The Federation of British Columbia Naturalists brought out some Interesting points in a brief to the pollution control board inquiry into waste discharges from the mining, mine-milling and smelting industries being held this week in Vancouver . . . The brief warms about the dangers of transporting water-suspended materials (coal, sulphur, pelletized iron concentrates and wood chips have been suggested as possibilities) in pipelines . . . Risks of pollution could arise through insufficient cleaning of the water used to earry these materials . . . "Standards for the emission of carrying waters should therefore be set nigh enough so that there is no possibility of environmental degradation resulting from their discharge," said the brief.

Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association will hold a special Goldstream Conservation Derby on June 25 to raise money for projects on the Goldstream River . . . Consolation prize is $150 and fishing awards will be $50, $25 and $10 in addition to many hidden-weight prizes . . . Tickets will be 25 cents each or live for $1 . . The 56-rung Ladder Derby will run from April 1 to May 28 with the fishoff on June 4 . . . Other derby dates are: Membership Derby — May 7. Sweetheart Derby — July 9, Junior Derby — Aug. 27, Coho-Spring Derby — Sept. 17.

SCHOOL BOARDS SPEAK OUT

TEACHERS' PAY INCREASES ARE IN LINE WITH B.C. AVERAGES

The following is an excerpt from EDUCATION B.C., published by The British Columbia School Trustees Association.

"Implicit in the suggestion that teachers' salary increases need to be curtailed is the assumption that they are out of line. Yet nobody advocating a ceiling on teachers' salary increases has yet produced any evidence to substantiate the argu-

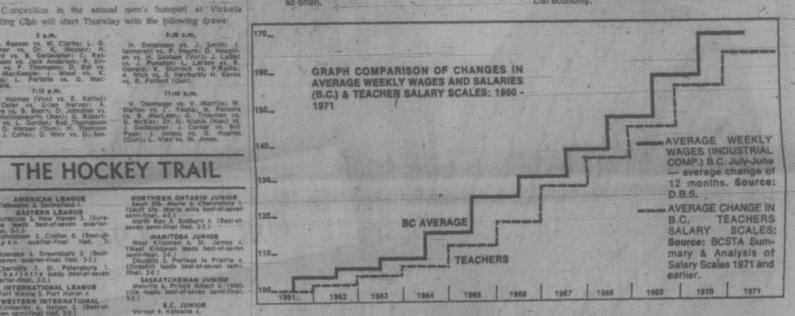

As recently as 12 years ago it was widely felt the teachers were underpaid. Now the shoe is on the other foot and we are being told that teachers are receiving inflationary salaries, out of line with increases given other workers.

School boards have pointed to the arbitration awards, showing that they are lower than the original teacher demands. The man in the street sees that, once again, teachers have received a salary increase of seven or eight per cent. "Surely," he thinks, "these continual increases must stop sometime." No other group in our society negotiates so visibly, so dramatically, or so often.

Let's take a hard look at teachers' salary increases over the past 11 years. How do teacher salary increases compare to other increases in the province? The graph below shows clearly that from 1960 to 1971, the rate of increase in teacher salary scales has never exceeded the average weekly wages and salaries in British Columbia. In fact, teachers' salary increases have followed the trend sat by all other workers in the followed the trend set by all other workers in the

There is a principle involved here that has wide acceptance: The salaries of people employed in the public service should follow the salaries of the people who pay the tax billa.

When we set aside the rhetoric and unsupported conclusions, we see that the facts uphold this principle. In spite of the limitations imposed on them by legislation, school boards have successfully restrained teachers' salary increases to those achieved by other sectors of the provincial economy."

Deputy Postmaster-General John McKay is a former president of ITT Canada and Jack Moody, a department engineer, now is on loan to the Guelph, Ont.. company.

Erik Nielsen (PC—Yukon), the main questioner on the contract, said he only wanted a thorough investigation into the matter.

NIELSEN THANKS MCKAY

After almost six hours, Mr. lielsen congratulated Mr. dcKay for "for his frank and controversy. However, Mr. Nielsen de-layed final approval of the postal estimates. He said he wanted more time to study documents involved in the contract award including tenders and specifications of the equipment. His close questioning of witnesses angered Liberal committee members and Mr. Cote, who accused the Whitehorse lawyer of playing a game.

Mr. Nielsen replied that he was only inquiring into a contract which involved millions of taxpayer dollars.

ITT was awarded the contract although its only competitor, Plessey Canada Ltd., submitted a lower bid of $67,647,000.

597,647.000.
Mr. Cote said Plessey's bid included extra machinery not specified in the contract. This, along with Plessey's machinery being slower than ITTs, would have resulted in an additional "20 millions in labor." itional $39 million in labor osts over 15 years, he said.

Choice of names for babies a serious matter

By ANN DUNSMUIR Times Staff

Today's parents have enough worries without having to wonder whether the name they choose for their newborn child meets with

Their choice of names has upset Burt Campbell, (SC—Reveistoke-Slocan). Last week in the legislature he complained that children in his constituency had been given names such at Tree, Sunflower and Amchitka.

"Most youngsters just ac-cept odd sounding names," Lister said. "T've never found children abusing each other because of names."

"We've had children with unusual foreign names," he said: "Often they pick up a nickname" that is agreeable

"It probably doesn't make as much difference to the kids as it does to the politicians," Axmaker said.

Axmaker said.

Local ministers have not yet been asked to christen babies with names they considered "too way out."

Dr. Harold Kerley of Fair-field United Church hasn't noticed any unusual trend in aumes. He said that he was surprised to find that there was so little duplication of Christian names in his baptismal records.

The days "when mothers chose whatever name was most fashionable may be gone for good, Instead of Crade I. classes crammed with little girls called Tracy, Cathy and Jennifer, or boys named Jennifer, or boys named Brian, Todd or Darren the roll will contain names like Twila, Shani and Julene.

Personal Aspect

Many think this trend toward more individualistic Christian names may be an effort to offset the depersonalizing aspects of modern

Welfare Just Temporary

MONTREAL (CP) — Alice Melanson, 27-year-old mother of four small boys, is trying to raise her family alone and on welfare and is determined to do the job right.

Separated from her husband for more than three years, she lives on a monthly income of $276 — welfare and family allowance included.

Her eventual aim is to leave welfare behind, and study social work at a university. "T've been there, I know what it's like and I want to help," she said in an interview. But she has been advised by social agencies to stay at home until her youngest son Timothy, three, is of school age.

Alice spends $100 a month to rent a bright, clean 5½-room east-end apartment and more than $100 a month for

She buys her growing hids have got to eat properly."

She buys her groceries in two-week lots and makes generous use of hearty stews and vegetable soups "which don't take a lot of measuring," she said,

"I just throw in whatever I happen to have in the fridge at the time."

High on Alice's grocery list are fresh fruit and vegeta-bles, fresh milk and eggs.

She buys her meat from a European butcher who's been the family butcher for a long time. "He's got good meat buys and I get soup bones from him for nothing — does that ever

Private College May Announce Location Soon

The site chosen for the United World-Colleges' school to be built on southern Vancouver Island may be announced at the end of this month.

Bertram Butler, chairman of the local UWC committee, said Tuesday he hoped Lord Mountbatten, president of the organization's international council, would make the announcement on his visit to the west coast in late March.

Butler said the site committee had looked at more than 50 possible sites, but added that in view of the effect on property values "it would be unwise to indicate now those for which we are sliowing a preference."

Earlier, in a lunch-time talk to the Kiwania Club of Victoria, Butler explained the background to the UWC scheme and described the aims of the 300-student university of the Pacific, which will complement a similar university of the Atlantic

The college, drawing students from North America and the Pacific Rim countries, is expected to cost between 35 million and 37 million, and Butler said about three-quarters of this will come from American foundations and donors.

He said there is great interest in the project among the Pacific Rim countries, where national committees are being formed for liaison purposes.

On this trip Dr. Lotta says her greatest problem "was to determine where the priorities lie in these countries which are starting at rock bottom."

Should it be feeding projects that would give one protein-filled meal for 5,000 of the hungriest school children in Swaziland or technical training outlets that would provide job opportunities?

What about secondary education which has always been the life dream of children in all three countries, for it may mean a job later on and an income to help the rest of their families. And the "immensely urgent priority which cannot wait" — medical aid.

In the central district of Botswana, the USC has been underwriting part of the running expenses for health services, created only very recently — and the only such services in an area of 10,000 miles, inhabited by 50,000 people.

Responsibility for handling this help for that number of people lies on the shoulders of two African nurses, one with added-training in midwifery and the other with training in family planning. There is no doctor.

Last year, Dr. Lotta points out, the USC budget for Africa was $52,000 plus drugs contributed by the Jaycees of Edmonton, valued.

She has asked that not only the Lesotho budget be doubled to give scholarships for the most indigent among brilliant secondary school students, but that the scheme also be introduced in Swaziland.

She has advised that school feeding programs be continued on a large scale, that desperately needed 'classrooms be built and that the USC sponsor three children's homes under its foster parent scheme. She has also recommended that recurrent expenses for a "Nutrition Rehabilitation Village" in Botswana be underwritten.

In that village groups of mothers with their little ones may stay for two weeks at a time, learning about nutrition, the making of vegetable gardens and the basics of family planning — all for less than $3,500 a year.

In this long and information-filled letter.
Dr. Lotta under-scores the "tremendous need" for doctors in Lesotho, particularly general practitioners" but also for a radiologist and gynecologist."

She writes of unfilled needs for baby clothing small blankets for hundreds of little herdboys in Lesotho, and clothing, blankets, qulits and afghans for the very old in Ma-

"Equally, there is no evidence that either the Alberta Teachers' Association or the school boards are doing very much to encourage women to apply for such positions."

Numbers of women in administrative appointments.

It also was traditionally accepted by society that a wife's job must not be as "important" as her husband's, so she might not apply for positions "for the sake of family harmony."

Numbers of women in administrative positions in the province have declined in the last 10 years, she writes, in 1961-62, women held 5.5 per cent of school administrative positions, but by 1970-71, this figure dropped to 3.5 per cent.

of successful applications were higher for women than men.

"Women teachers have themselves partly to blame for the small percentage of school administrative appointments they hold in the province. Very few women appear to apply for these appointments."

The reasons women teachers were reluctant to apply were mainly the "traditional attitudes." Even in choosing teaching as a profession, many women might have been affected by these attitudes.

Original Scripts Used In School Drama Test

By AUDREY JOHNSON

"This was a night of vision," said Clara Hare, in adjudicating the Tucaday session of the Greater Victoria Schools Drama Festival at Mount Douglas Senior Secondary

Mount Douglas Senior Secondary.

The program's three entries were not only contemporary but two were original scripts.

All the plays were about man's vision, said Mrs. Hare.

N. F. Simpson's The Hole was the first Mount Douglas entry. This is one of the famous one aets in the realm of Theatre of the Absurd and Mrs. Hare characterized it as

AHEAD OF TIME

The second Mount Douglas entry was written by student Steve E. Smith. Entitled 501-C. it was set 40 years in the future in Vetoria.

In general the impact of the play was muffled by the stage space, poor projection and break-down of continuity between scenes.

"These gaps were far too long," said Mrs. Hare. She pointed out to student director Denaline Silverwood that there was no need for all the black-out scene changes.

"You didn't need all that space for every scene," she would have been much more effective.

HANDICAP She felt that individual per formances were handicapped by the play being set so far up-stage and therefore she would make no comment on pla student responsible for publishing a newsletter con-taining anti-semitle and other ethnic slurs has apologized to the local Jewish community through Sam Kaplan, editor of the weeldy Jewish Western Patlistin.

Student Apologizes For Remarks

the weekly Jewish Western Bulletin.

Kaplan said Tuesday he received a phone call and later a written statement from a young man who said he was one of six civil engineering students at the university responsible for the material.

Kaplan said he is certain the apology is authentic and plans to print the letter in his next edition.

Engineering student Samuel Vesley, who identified himself as a Jewish engineer, said he arranged for the apology to be made and watched the student write it out.

Vesley told a meeting of about 400 of UBC's 1,050 engineering undergraduates that Jewish leaders are satisfied with the apology and will take no further action.

Between now and the end of March several hardy sum-mer flowering shrubs are due for a certain amount of prun-

While pruning is less of a necessity in very large properties, it serves a useful purpose in smaller gardens by limiting height and width of plants.

height and width of plants.

The result is that we have the shrub we want with a few fine branches of foliage and flowers. Space is available for other desirable plants and we don't end up with domination by the few strongest.

Hypericums of several species and varieties are lovely, shrubs for even small gardens when pruned by the end of March each year.

Growth is easily noticeable on these plants now so you can see what is to be done and results will show in a week or

First, let us look at Hypericum calycinum which you may be growing as St. John's-wort or Rose-of-Sharon. As a groundcover or a foot-wide edging to rather shady driveways or beds, this 15-inch, high plant should now be cut back with shears to six inches.

You'll see plenty of tiny green bud shoots down below.

Remove all dead pieces you find after shearing the top growth. The more light and air let in at this stage, the better the growth.

the growth. While you're at it add a three-inch top dressing of compost around the plants, for the abundance of summer growth and lovely gold flowers demand renewal of soil each year.

Taller hypericums are grown as single specimens or even as loose attractive hedges. These also give far better foliage and bloom when drastically pruned before the end of March.

Hypericum patulum, variety Hidcote and variety Forrestil, are fine shrubs for their lovely bronzy green leaves all summer and fall, blus three-inch-wide deep yellow flowers beginning by late June.

Each is centered with numerous conspicuous stamens of the same color as the petals. Since buds are in clusters of three at the tip of every new twig produced after pruning, and only one in the cluster opens at a time, succession of bloom continues for several weeks. Seedlings of H. patulum Forrestil are freely produced, and are true to the parent Forrestil are freely produced, and are true to the parent plant.

The last of the flowers on the latest developed twigs will be opening in early September, so there you have good value for your shrub money.

In pruning a specimen Hypericum Forrestil or H. Hidcote, take secateurs and out the longest canes down by at least one-third their length; more if you wish.

Make the cuts just above where you see green shoots. Remove any weak twiggy growth not wanted, and topdress with six inches of compost and old manure. You will have a five or six-foot shrub by late summer as colorful as any in your garden.

Canada, U.S. in Trade Block?

WASHINGTON (CP) — The concept of a radically altered world, divided amicably but formally into vast economic "groups," apparently is using given consideration among semior officials in the Nixon admired than the control of the world.

The European Common Market already is moving in this direction, and it is entirely and the world.

For Canada, the concept probably would signify an even tighter liaison with the United States and thus would appear to conflict with Ottawa's current policy of diversifying its foreign ties as a means of lessening Canadian dependence on the U.S.

Informed sources say the idea is still just one of the possibilities being weighed here as a potential solution to the numerous long-range problems in trade and monetary affairs which confront the U.S. and other world governments.

But there are indications that no less a figure than Treasury Secretary John Connally has been mulling over the conception. For that reason alone, it is not lightly dismissed by observers here.

Basically, the concept sees the world divided by design into several major economic blocs.

TRADE FREE

Within the blocs there would be generally free trade and relatively fixed exchange rates for member currencies. Outside the blocs the currencies would "float" in relation the rest of the world.

The European Common Market already is moving in this direction, and it is envisaged as one of the major "groups" under the plan, with the Market's area also including much of Africa.

Another "group" would centre on the United States and would ostensibly include Canada, Japan, Australia and New Zealand, much of Latin America and such Asian countries as Indonesia and the Philippines.

Yet another cluster would involve the Soviet Union and its East European allies.
China would be a "group" on its own, and some other countries would be left to decide which cluster to join.

Asked about the money she was told she could earn, Miss L'Abbe told court: "I was more interested in Glenn Turner's eyes."
She said she paid $5,000 to join the group after she was told about Dare To Be Great by a friend last October.
She testified that she borrowed money from a bank to finance her entry into—the scheme, adding she was not pressured in any way to get the funds.

She told court she was in-terested in the scheme, not as a way to make money, but as, a self-motivation scheme which built character.

E. Germany, Poland Approach Accord

SZCZECIN, Poland - Three out of every four parked cars in the main square here have East German licence plates. In the cases of the big hotels frontier 10 miles west of here, the shiny new Wartburgs and Trabants on a day's family outing to Poland line up in a long queue at the first gas station across the border. Gasoline is about 15 per cent cheaper here than in East cheaper here than in East Germany, and you can get a high-octane quality.

All this is new—and one of the most important development in Eastern Europe for many years. It stems directly from the complete opening of the bootless between Eastmany and Poland in January this year. Polish families can cross into the German Demo-oratic Republic and vice versa as easily as English tourists to France; more easi-

Some 650,000 Poles have been to the GDR since midJanuary. East Germans have also been able to enter Czechoslovakia freely, although there are customs restrictions

there are customs restrictions on what they can take out. Between the GDR and Poland there are no such bar-riers. The only thing a private citizen cannot buy abroad is a car, though there are still car, though there are sull barriers to commercial bulk buying by factories, shops and other businesses. People go to Germany to buy motorcycles, shoes, cameras, tools and doit-yourself equipment. There is some talk of people even buying furniture and having it shipped across to Poland.

buying furniture and having it shipped across to Poland.

For their part, besides gasoline, East Germans find cheaper chocolate, sweets, various dalry products, cheese, cream and parkas of man-made fibres. They are also buying some things virtually unobtainable in the GDR, like West German Grundig tape recorders made Grundig tape recorders made on licence in Poland.

frontier crossing points strad-die the River Oder with Po-lish and German towns direct-ly facing each other — Frank-furt opposite Subice and, fur-ther south again, Goerlitz op-posite Zourales. There, Gerposite Zgorzelec. There, Germans and Poles cross the border daily — housewives looking for the best bargains according to the price dif-ferential, and motorists virtually boycotting the more expensive German gasoline.

Because the Poles put a 30per-cent tax on German marks bought in the bank, a black market in marks has developed. Friday, authorities announced the tax will be cut to 15 per cent March 15. It may later disappear altogether.

That was the first official move in the complete adjustment of centrally-planned prices which this open border must eventually bring. It must give a powerful stimulus to the previously snall-like process of economic integration in Comecon. The whole artificially-set price system is artificially-set price system in the Comecon economy is now affected, and in the long run this will be as important a result of the open border as

The Czech government is well aware of this. It is probably the reason why, after slowly stabilizing the country's economy, Czech slowly stabilizing the country's economy, Czech leader Dr. Gustav Husak is reluctant to let East Germans and Poles rush in and buy up Czech stocks, Hence the customs restrictions in Czechoslovakia, .

It has also been announced that from April, Poles will beable to enter Czechoslovakia freely with only an identity freely with only an identity card. In both cases, however, the movement is only one way. The Czechs are not yet letting their people move re-ciprocally to the GDR and Po-its customs restrictions, seem to be delaying the progress of to be delaying the progress of the talks now going on be-tween all the East European countries. To move south from the GDR or Poland you have to go through Czechoslo-vakia. Informed sources in Warsaw suggest that a com-promise may be reached by promise may be reached by which Poles and East Ger-mans with only identity eards will at least be able to travel by train or coach in transit train or coach in transit from Czechoslovakia to Hun-gary, Bulgaria and Rumania. The one significant excep-tion in this whole process is the Soviet Union. They tell you officially here that the USSR is considering letting. Poles in on identity cards, but Russians will probably not be able to come out individually for some time yet. In the long run, there can be no respectable argument against open borders, but the demonstrated effect of the relatively higher standards of consumer goods in East Europe must be known in Moscowy.

known in Moscow.

This was obviously realized in Warsaw, too. After all, what are Poles going to think when they are reminded every day now by the flood of East German cars that there are four times as many private cars proportionately in the GDR as in Poland?

But the Polish government has clearly decided that the benefits of letting its people travel outweighs any risks. In a recent survey by the Polish travel outweight any risks. In a recent survey by the Polish Institute of Internal Trade, 83 per cent of Poles declared an ungratified urge to travel abroad. 'It took a Honecker and a Gierek' to do what Ubright and Gomulka never could do," as one resident here put it.

Whatever the politicians decide, the open border is al-

Whatever the politicians decide, the open border is already of enormous significance. One Polish journalist in the magazine Polityka recently painted a lyrical picture of "a new Pole, married to a Hungarian, with a son working in Czechoslovakia, occasionally eating Bulgarian food at home, with friends in Bucharest, German technical Bucharest, German technical books on his shelves, and a fa-vorite place in Yugoslavia to spend his holidays at will."

Stag-Horn Stone in One Kidney

I have had dozens of letters from people who have told me that they had a so-called stag-horn stone in one kidney. Shaped somewhat like the horn of a stag, it is so large that it fills the cavity in the kidney.

Because a stag-horn stone is so big that it cannot go down the wreter (the tube that runs to the bladder), it usually does not produce pain. Painful spells are commonly produced by a small stone, of bit of "sand" going down the ureter. Because the big stones are often painless, the urologists often do not operate on them.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

operate on them.

I just read a paper by Drs. Libertino, Newman, Lytton, and Weiss, of Yale, who have reported what they did for 17 patients with stag-horn stones in one kidney. The doctors removed the stone in nine cases. Among the eight who were not operated on, severe failure of the kidney developed in two. Four others died of causes not related to the kidney. Two remained well. What is sad is that of the nine operated on, five got more stones, on the average, a year and a half later.

The one hopeful aspect of this desease is that people can live comfortably with only one kidney functioning.

THE SIGNIFICANCE OF PAP TESTS All women, especially those past 40, should know that they should go to a doctor once or twice a year for a "pap" smear (a test named after the late Dr. Papanicolao, a great gynecologist). The test is a simple one, and is generally done as a routine part of a gynecologic examination. A little mucus is taken from the neck of the womb, called the cervix, smeared on a small glass slide, stained, and studied under a microscope. This can show if there are any changes in the cells that suggest that a cancer is likely to develop or has developed in that part of the womb.

When pre-cancerous changes are noticed, the doctor can begin treatment immediately, rather than giving the cancer time to grow and perhaps to spread to other organs. By that time, it is extremely difficult to save the woman's life.

The pap test is one of the factors which has contributed to a dramatic decline (about 50 per cent in the past 33 years) in deaths from cervical cancer.

to a dramatic decline (about 50 per cent in the past 33 years) in deaths from cervical cancer.

Recently, I have been reading of a method of diagnosing endometrial cancer (cancer of the middle or lining of the womb), with what is called the "jet washer," invented by Dr. L. Clark Graylee, Jr., of the University Hospital and Hillman Clinic, Birmingham, Ala. The jet washer diagnoses cancer with remarkable accuracy. This is good, because cancer of the womb is the second commonest cancer in women, and in the past the diagnosis has usually been made too late.

RARE SNOW LEOPARDS ARRIVE IN SEATTLE

The leopards, a male and a female, are considered an en-dangered species and their capture is proscribed by law, even for 200s.

The cats, whose long, thick fur is punctuated with black spots, cost the zoo $12,000.

Experts say there are only 300-400 of the cats left and probably the only way a zoo will be able to obtain one of the creatures in the future will be from another zoo. Seattle's pair were named Nicholas and Alexandro

TOOT FOR A TOT - three-year-old Stephen Carpenter of London, England, makes his first contact with a bagpipe chanter during a Scots Guards rehearsal break at regimental headquarters. The Guards, 80strong, and including brass, pipes and drums and dancers, will present one of their colorful performances at Memorial Arena, Friday. The 329-yearold Regiment began its present tour of North-America at New York's Madison Square Gardens and will have visited 66 cities before its end.

Reid, City Fathers About Ready to Agree

Reid has written the city, indicating he is willing to restrict his project to two towers, each about 10 storeys.

Originally the project included three towers, ranging from 18 to 23 storeys.

Ald. Mike Young, Victorials community development committee chairman, said Mobday the city would not be inflexible and that it would be quite acceptable if Reid built one 12 and one eight - storey tower.

Reid appears to be getting closer, the city is making less progress with three other de-

Council has adviced Mace to reapply.

Called Bay Village, Mace's complex is to be built at Menzies and Simcoe.

No word has been received, either, from Vancouver developer G. F. Mulek that he will agree to lower his proposed 25-storey tower, planned for the corner of View and Quadra.

Copp has said he will not fight city hall and will abandon plans if he can't build a viable project.

Meanwhile, the city has put a freeze on building permits until mid-April.

The purpose of the freeze is to stop permits being issued for projects that would contravene a proposed zoning bylaw that would limit downtown highrises to 14 storeys.

A public hearing on the bylaw will be held March 23 with the final decision being made at that night's meeting.

The city's entire zoning bylaw will be reviewed in about five months.

Until that time the proposed zoning restriction will remain in effect.

Tory Raps Bilingual Coercion

OTTAWA (CP)-There must be no coercion in government policies promoting bilingual-ism within the public service, Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield said Tuesday night.

Speaking at an Ottawa West party meeting, he told his followers there should be no quota systems in the public service and no interference with the merit system for promotions. Civil servants should not be required for not being not be penalized for not being able to speak one official language.

"The true spirit of bilingualism is one of attitude and commitment to a certain per-ception of society. It has nothing to do with compulsion."
Stanfield declared his firm

support for bilingualism:
"Let there be no doubt here about my position. Canada is a country with two official languages and a diversity of cultures. That is the source of our uniqueness in the world. "What does bilingualism mean in Canada?

"It means that, within the limits of practicability, Canadians should have the right to federal government service in English or French according to their own choice.

"It means that the public service of this country should be attractive to English— and French-speaking Canadi-ans alike. And it means that government officials should be encouraged to learn the other language, especially where it means they will be able to do their job better because of such knowledge."

Private Hospital Wins Test

VANCOUVER (CP) - A private hospital in Vancouver Monday won a limited victory in a test case that sought more funds from the city of Vancouver for care of welfare

Mr. Justice T. R. Berger of the British Columbia Supreme Court granted Parkland Pri-vate Hospital $57,524,95 — the difference between the hospital rates and the rates paid by the provincial government from March 1, 1968 to Sept.

Parkland had sought payment for the difference from March 1, 1968 and Jan. 31 of this year.

this year.

Berger ruled the hospital was not entitled to increased rates for welfare patients after Sept. 18, 1970 — when the provincial government set a rate for services under the Social Assistance Act.

The city of Victoria was

The city of Victoria was billed in July for $268,000 by three private hospitals. They claim that amount is the city's share of the cost of keeping welfare patients since 1967.

The three are Aberdeen, claiming $52,000, and Glengarry and Glenwarren, each claiming about $108,000. City solicitor Terry O'Grady said Monday night these cases were still awaiting court deci-

TOO LENIENT

The attorney-general said he had heard all the arguments and "excuses" be-fore and had considered them all before deciding on the "harsh" approach to the six—month suspension.

"There is an advantage in having one rule, a simple rule, so they know there is no way out," Peterson said in rejecting the criticisms.

The statistics on the effect of drunk driving are such "that we have to take harsh action," Peterson said. He also rejected arguments that the measures would be any harder on country people than on city people.

Hussein Plan Bombshell

Times News Services

AMMAN, Jordan - King Hussein's plan to re-organize his Hashemite kingdom of Jordan into a federal state hit the Arab world like a bomb-shell today despite the fact that the controversial proposal had been known and ex-pected for several days.

The plan essentially seeks to solve the "Palestine problem" by creating a semi-au-tonomous state of Palestine on the Israeli-occupied West Bank of the Jordan River. While such a state, with the tentative capital' in Jerusa-lem, would have power over its own internal affairs, defence and diplomatic matters

HUGHES Wrecked Ship Spilling Oil In Park Area

By PAT DUFOUR Times Staff

The Pacific Rim National Park on Vancouver Island's west coast lay under threat today from crude bunker oil spilling from a holed freighter off Cape Beale,

The freighter Vanlene had 400 tons of bunker oil aboard when she hit a rock, part of the Broken Group, which lie southeast of Austin Island and northwest of Cape Beale.

Officials are unable to say at what rate the oil is leaking, but when told of how much is aboard, a provincial fish and widdlife spokesman said:

"Oh, my God!"

The grounding occurred at 9 p.m. Tuesday when the ship, with 38 crewmen aboard, was on her way from Japan to Vancouver with a cargo of cars.

Locating of the 8,500-ton freighter and the rescue of her crew this morning was complicated by an incorrect position radioed from Vanlene when she sent out her May Day

In an interview at Port Alberni today, the ship's captain, Captain Lo Chung-Hung. 29. said he had crossed the Pacific Ocean with only a hand compass as a navigational aid. He had navigated in deep fog all Tuesday.

"All our navigation aids had broken down. I requested of the ship's owner that it be fixed better we leave Japan Feb.. 24 but this was the option of the owner. I am very unhappy about it all." He said the Vanlene was holed amidships and the engine room had 20 feet of water in it when he gave the order to abanden.

He said the water was still rising when they left.

The Timeless Challenge Of a Great Man's Words

Being another of our occasional Question and Answer Days:

Question: "Thank you for standing up for the two young couples who are threatened with eviction in Metchosin by the Regional Board," writes N.G., of Millstream Lake Road. "Perhaps because I live in the country myself I feel a great sympathy for these people being forced to adhere to rules that seem pointless. In my opinion, it would be more worthwhile for our officials to spend time welcoming gentle people who can add some direction and meaning to life rather than forcing them to natch a 'standard' that they may not believe in. Answer: There have been a great many letters and calls volunteering help and two members of the Capital Region Board have made a personal visit to see Jerry and Eille and Don and Jennifer, the couples who face eviction. If no other compromise can be worked out, they're hopeful now that there can be, at least, an extension of the March M deadline. I'll keep you posted.

Question: "Recently I came across an interview that you conducted with the late Dr. Brock Chisbolm on October 1, 1956," writes Margaret E. Gowler of our town. Answer: The interview was arranged after Dr. Chisholm's defeat as a Conservative candidate in Esquimalt in the 1935 provincial elections. I began by asking Dr. Chisholm if there was any real basis for believing that the public's will is the greatest guarantee of a strong democracy.

"No," he replied. 'If there are enough weak, dependent, faithful, obedient, immature, irresponsible, superstitious or hating people, or people who want to be followers, a strong man will be what they want, until they get one, and then they cannot get rid of him."

Did he believe that the so-called average man is shirking his duty to be well-informed and to improve himself intellec-

"He often votes for his own local advantage which might be quite temporary rather than for the long-term values and causes important to the world, but that is just to say that the average man is not mature enough to function satisfactorily in a democracy. How could be be when we have not been teaching independent thinking and personal integrity in our educational systems?"

Well, then, would be advocate an intelligence or current-affairs test to insure that voters had a reasonable knowledge of the issues before marking their ballots?

"I do not think that is the answer," he replied, "Only continuing pressure, by all capable of applying it, in the direction of maturity of the individual citizen can ever make democracy what it should and could-be."

I asked Dr. Chisholm: "Do you believe that the materialism of North America has produced an ennul and a vacuum of individualistic thought as — say — compared with Europe?"

Dr. Chisholm: "I do believe that the excessive concern for ownership of stuff and things as a means of acquiring prestige.

Dr. Chisbolm: "I do believe that the excessive concern for ownership of stuff and things as a means of acquiring prestige or attention can take the place of much more important concerns and is doing so particularly in North America. This form of competition is child-like and un-social, but is the major concern of many people."

What could be done, then, if anything, to raise the level of

What could be done, then, if anything, to raise the level of this all-important "average man?"

Dr. Chisholm: "A long, slow, painful effort to recognize our own weaknesses and prejudices, our own immaturities, our own tendency to grab, to indulge in aggression, to hate the different or experimental, to demand conformity is, I believe, the only possible first step. Then, or when the process is somewhat advanced, we will need to consider what was wrong with our upbringing. Then we can begin to revise our home and school systems of bringing up children.

"In the meantime," he went on, "we can do what is possible to weaken prejudice, to spread tolerance of experiment, of other kinds of people and different social systems. We can try to see world affairs not only from our own point of view — that is, our advantage — but in terms of the best for the world and all its people. We can learn to identify ourselves with the Unitall its people. We can learn to identify our trying to get along

"There is no shortage of things that need to be done." he concluded, "but relatively few people feel any responsibility for trying to do them."

Question: "My wife and I were intrigued by your description of the game of Indian Poker and wasted an entire evening trying to make something of it." writes Mel Crossley, of Sooke. "We divided up a box of kitchen matches and went at it, but neither of us would venture a bet when the other had a high card and the game just petered out. Is it possible that we may have misunderstood the rules?"

Answer: My suggestion, Mel, is that you and Mrs. Crossley get on your knees tonight and thank the good Lord that you've been spared the gambling lust. Only a compulsive gambler could possibly see the insidious fascination of Indian Poker or its invitation to chicanery, double-dealing, outright lying and parlor dramatics. By PAT DUFOUR Times Staff

The Pacific Rim National Park on Vancouver Island's west coast lay under threat today from crude bunker oil spilling from a holed freighter off Cape Beale.

The freighter Vanlene had 400 tons of bunker oil aboard when she hit a rock, part of the Broken Group, which lie southeast of Austin Island and northwest of Cape Beale.

Officials are unable to say at what rate the oil is leaking, but when told of how much is aboard, a provincial fish and wildlife spokesman said:

"Oh, my God!"

The grounding occurred at 9 p.m. Tuesday when the ship with 33 crewmen aboard, was on her way from Japan to Vancouver with a cargo of cars.

Locating of the 8,500-ton freighter and the rescue of her crew this morning was complicated by an incorrect position radioed from Vaniene when she sent out her May Day

In an interview at Port Alberni today, the ship's captain, Captain Lo Chung-Hung. 29, said he had crossed the Pacific Ocean with only a hand compass as a navigational aid. He had navigated in deep fog all Tuesday.

"All our navigation aids had broken down. I requested of the ship's owner that it be fixed before we left Japan Feb. 24 but this was the option of the owner. I am very unhappy about it all."
